

Monetary funds are the lifeblood of every organization. At the Cross-Cultural Research and Educational Institute (CREI), we are committed to providing much needed assistance to young people's education; this won't be possible without your generous financial donations. If you agree with our mission statement and would like to support us, please fill out the following form and email it to us. Your contributions, in whatever amount, are greatly appreciated. The information you provide us below will be strictly confidential.
